This study is being done to enhance our collective understanding of the effectiveness of current practices in the management of acute postoperative dental pain during the first seven days following some dental procedures. Knowledge gained from this study will inform the design of health IT-enabled interventions geared toward optimizing its management. Our ultimate goal is to achieve the quadruple aim: improve patient experience, improve patient outcomes, improve physician experience and reduce per capita costs.

This research is funded by the Agency for Healthcare Research and Quality (AHRQ). The study researchers have no conflicts of interest to disclose.

How many people will take part in this study?

About 6,000 patients will take part in this study across all study sites.

What will happen if I take part in this research study?

If you agree to take part in this study, the following procedures will occur:

- We will obtain from your dental record the following information:
 - record number
 - several dates: year of birth, date of procedure, dates of visits
 - information on your dental procedure, post-operative instructions provided to you
 - prescribed medication
 - Information on noted complications
- We will collect this information from your dental record one time one month after your dental procedure.
- Two members of this research team who have each received training in the conduct of this type of research will conduct the chart review
- You will receive a text message confirming your enrollment in the study from the research team.
- On the day of your scheduled procedure, your clinical care will proceed as normal. At the end of the procedure, you will be provided with post-op instructions.
- On Day 7, you will be invited to complete a questionnaire during your follow-up visit or through a link sent via SMS. We may contact you if we do not receive your completed questionnaire within 48 to 72 hours of sending the link. We will also send you up to three reminders if we are unable to reach you
- Study location: All these procedures will be done at the UCSF Dental Center or Willamette Dental Group/Skourtes Institute as part of your regular care.

How long will I be in the study?

Participation in the study will take a total of about 20 minutes of your time over the seven-day study period.

Can I stop being in the study?
